Baxter Bond of Columbia, a senior in the School of Business and Public Administration, was elected president of the student body of the University over Nathan Scarritt of Kansas City, a junior in the College of Arts and Science, by a majority of forty-two votes and the honor system passed by more than 2 to 1 in the annual student election yesterday. The small number of votes cast was in sharp contrast to the contests of former years. The Student Council, which had charge of the election, was busy counting ballots until 3 o'clock this morning. Many students, interested in the returns, waited until the final count and celebrated the election of their candidate.

In none of the offices were there the number of candidates of former years. In many cases there was only one candidate. The reason accepted by most students is the uncertainity of returning to school next fall. For the office of editor and business manager of the Savitar there was only one candidate for each office.
